Keely claims top model worldwide title

By HELEN CASTLES

Finalists travelled from all corners of the globe to compete in London earlier this month, vying for a chance at the title, but it was the striking Keely who caught the eye of judges, firmly setting her star on the rise in the international world of fashion.

After taking out the Australian Top Model title in June, Keely won the chance to compete for the worldwide title as well as the stellar opportunity to work with the industry's best on the London Fashion Week runway.

Now with trophy in hand and on her way back home to Australia after a dream trip to one of the world's most iconic fashion capitals, the stunning 19-year-old said she cannot wait to see where this latest achievement will take her.

"It still hasn't sunk in yet that I won the international competition. I couldn't believe it when they called my name," Keely said.

"I am so excited to see what opportunities come from this title and the voice it will give me to inspire others."

Top Model is a leading model search awards and fashion event in the UK with a proven track record of discovering new model talent, launching exciting careers and making dreams come true.

Many previous finalists and winners have signed with prestigious agencies and graced the covers of international fashion magazines while securing sought after places on the runway.

The competition was held at the stunning Grand Connaught Rooms in London's trendy Covent Garden district, where Keely took to the catwalk with finalists from South Africa, France and the British Virgin Islands.

"It was so special to wear an Australian designer, especially one from my hometown," she said.

"The whole Top Model experience has been amazing; it's been a fun journey that has made me more confident on and off the stage.

"I have met amazing people in this industry through Top Model and have loved being a part of this experience.

"London was amazing, and I am on my way back home now. I am so grateful to SriLankan Airlines for flying me over and back in business class, it made the long trip so much more enjoyable.

"I am not exactly sure what is next for me, but I hope to continually grow and chase opportunities in the fashion world."

As beautiful on the inside as she is on the outside, Keely has been receiving a tonne of support and congratulations from her proud hometown since news of her win was announced, and she was full of praise for her fellow competitors.

"Everyone was so beautiful and it was so lovely to meet them all and make friends from different countries," she said.

"Last but definitely not least, thank you to my beautiful family, partner and friends for all the support and love they have given me throughout my journey."

Keeping seniors socially connected

SENIORS will soon be able to enjoy a new array of exciting activities as part of the NSW Government's $840,000 investment in the 2025 Connecting Seniors Grant Program.

Applications for the grant program are now open with organisations including local councils, multicultural groups and Aboriginal-led organisations encouraged to apply for 28 grants worth $30,000 each.

The grants fund locally-driven projects, programs and activities which foster inclusion for seniors, from social gatherings to salsa dancing lessons and song clubs.

The grant program is divided into five categories:

Aboriginal Grants: Four grants for Aboriginal-led organisations or Aboriginal Community Controlled Organisations for initiatives targeted for Aboriginal communities

Multicultural Grants: Four grants for multicultural organisations for initiatives aimed at Culturally and Linguistically Diverse groups

Creation Grants: Six grants for new projects

Enhancement or Expansion Grants: Six grants to boost existing projects

Local Council Grants: Eight grants specifically for council-led projects.

The multicultural and Aboriginal category are new this year with the aim of reaching a more diverse range of older people. There is also an increased emphasis on intergenerational projects to foster social connections between older and younger people. This approach is vital for combating ageism, promoting inclusion, sharing experiences, and breaking down stereotypes.

Since its launch in 2020, the grant program has funded more than 120 projects over 30,000 seniors across 82 Local Government Areas across NSW.

The grant program helps deliver on the NSW Government's commitment in the Ageing Well in NSW: Seniors Strategy 2021-2031 to promote inclusion for older people.

Applications for the grant program close on October 21. Find out more and apply at https://dcj.nsw.gov.au/service-providers/grants/connecting-seniors-grant-program-2025.html

Minister for Seniors Jodie Harrison said whether it's dancing lessons or digital literacy, bush walking or simply talking, the Connecting Seniors Grant Program funds something for every interest.

"These projects can provide a social lifeline for seniors who often live alone and ensures older people stay connected and age well," she said.

Election result will be known next week

Ham delighted to be back for another term

By HELEN CASTLES

IT will be another week before the next Snowy Valleys Council will be officially announced.

The distribution of preferences to determine the elected candidates can only be conducted after the close of receipt of postal votes this Friday, September 27, and after all check counts are complete.

The distribution is performed using the NSW Electoral Commission's computer count system.

At time of press yesterday, candidates Julia Ham (1253 votes, 16.14%), Andrew Wortes (1012 votes, 13.04%), Hugh Packard (822 votes, 10.59%), Trina Thomson (802 votes, 10.33%) and Michael Inglis (781 votes, 10.06%) had already reached the progressive quota of votes to be elected.

That quota currently stands at 777.

An incumbent councillor, Ms Ham has comfortably led the count from the start and said she is very grateful to the people of Snowy Valleys for their votes.

After the dust settles and the new council is sworn in, we asked Ms Ham what some of her priorities will be for the upcoming term.

"I hope I can use this strength of numbers to work towards the four goals I stood for: improved financial sustainability, completing the demerger process, working with the transmission line companies for the best outcome for our area including to advocate for some undergrounding, and completing the Local Environment Plan," Ms Ham said.

"I am very excited to know that the funding for the Country University Centres has reopened and we will be working to get the application in by October 18.

"Finally the first sod on the Tumbarumba Start Strong Preschool has been turned and I'm looking forward to seeing that completed within the year.

"I am delighted to be back on Council; thank you Snowy Valleys."

James Hayes leads the remainder of the field with 565 votes, followed by John Larter on 542.

Since Friday's issue of the Times, while all candidate votes have increased, the order of candidates has not changed, with Grant Hardwick (404 votes) and Barney Hyams (352) still holding down the eighth and all-important ninth position.

David Sheldon is in tenth position with 322 votes, followed by Sam Hughes (283 votes), Max Gordon-Hall (240 votes), Hansie Armour (230 votes) and Mick Ivill (153).

The start of progressive distribution of preferences is set to commence next Monday, September 30.

Preferences will be distributed initially from the candidates that are above the quota, then move down to the bottom of the vote count, excluding candidates from the bottom up, until there are nine candidates who have reached the quota, or failing that, those candidates who didn't reach the quota who have the most votes.

The Snowy Valleys informal count currently stands at a high 771 (9.04%), however the NSW Electoral Commission says it won't stay that way.

Currently some other votes that will eventually be counted as formal are being counted in the 'informal/other votes' pile, which happens in the initial count. During the check count, many of these votes will be included in the final count.

Until the check count is complete, the total number of informal votes will not be final.

The NSW Electoral Commission indicates that final election results will be declared between October 1 and 3.

McGirr Bill to tackle illicit tobacco

TOBACCO retailers, wholesalers and the wider community are being asked to have their say on a proposed new law that would require anyone selling tobacco products in NSW to hold a licence.

The Bill, which is being presented to parliament by the Independent Member for Wagga Wagga, Dr Joe McGirr, is designed to help tackle a rising wave of criminality, as illegal tobacco sales continue to soar.

Dr McGirr said the Bill would require tobacco sellers to pass a "fit and proper person" test to be granted a licence and would impose tougher penalties on illegal operators who sell illicit tobacco or associated products such as vapes.

"Sales of illegal tobacco have exploded in the Wagga region – and across the state – in recent months, allowing criminals to earn huge amounts of illegal income at the expense of legitimate traders who are literally losing thousands of dollars every week because they cannot compete with criminals," Dr McGirr said.

"We know that criminals are supplying illegal tobacco that is sold 'under the counter' in shops that are popping up daily across the state and with that comes associated criminal activity such as money laundering and increased trade in illicit drugs.

"Health authorities and police are doing their best against this rising tide of crime but they simply cannot stem the flow of black market tobacco products, with offenders currently copping small fines as a cost of doing business and then simply resuming their trade with new stock.

"By requiring retailers to hold a licence, similar to those required of liquor sellers, we can better protect legitimate traders who are being driven out of business while at the same time, making it harder for criminals to operate undetected and unpunished."

Under Dr McGirr's Bill, penalties for breaching tobacco licensing laws would increase to a maximum of a $44,000 fine and/or four years' imprisonment (second offence) for an individual, or fines of up to $220,000 for corporations.

Dr McGirr said the Bill aimed to protect legitimate retailers and at the same time, ensure anti-smoking measures tied to legitimate sales are not compromised.

"In no way am I condoning smoking," he said. "In fact, if nobody smoked, the black market would not exist.

"However, given that there is still a huge demand for tobacco products, it is best to regulate that market so that it is harder for minors to get these products while ensuring that health messaging continues to function – things that are of no concern at all to black market suppliers.

"At the moment, the illegal trade is spiralling out of control – with a risk that the violence seen in Victoria between competing criminals could spread to NSW – and we can longer turn a blind eye to tobacco crime occurring in towns, villages and cities across the state."

Legitimate industry players are now being asked to provide Dr McGirr's office with feedback about the proposed Bill, with hopes it will be presented to parliament in November 2024.

Individuals wishing to have a say can email waggawagga@parliament.nsw.gov.au or visit joemcgirr.com.au.

A musical mind and a helping hand

OUR TOWN

Weekly profile on our people by Josh Gidney

OUR PEOPLE

Tumut community member, former principal, music teacher, music student and St Vincent de Paul volunteer Pat Mangelsdorf loves Tumut and its people.

THE love of music and helping those in need have played a big part in Pat Mangelsdorf's life.

Pat grew up just outside of Coolamon, and started school at a one-teacher kindergarten to mid-high school Carlisle Park School, where she was one of about 15 students.

"Our families would take in the teacher as a boarder for three months or so; they would rotate around," she said.

"There were no buses, so we didn't have the opportunity to travel into Coolamon for school until a few years later. It was great; it was a really good start."

When buses became available she was able to resume schooling at Coolamon.

"When I was in second form I went to boarding college in Goulburn, and did my leaving certificate," she said.

She then did music teaching for quite a number of years, and then underwent further studies with the Conservatorium of Music in Sydney and the School of Music at Manuka.

"I had a wonderful composer/pianist Larry Sitski, and Don Hollier, and they taught me there," she said.

"I had a great Sister of St Joseph teach me in Goulburn."

Piano was Pat's main instrument, but she also studied violin and the clarinet.

"My father was a great violin player," she said.

"The clarinet I loved too."

Pat first taught music at Yoogali School in Griffith, then at North Goulburn, Temora, O'Connor in Canberra, Culcairn, Braddon Catholic High, and was in an Assistant Principal at St Clare's College in Canberra in the late 1990s (she was one of three Assistant Principals, and was in charge of pastoral care).

"I've always had a big interest in pastoral care, with kids in terms of schools, but also, later, when I got involved with St Vincent de Paul, looking after people less fortunate than myself," she said.

Pat first came to Tumut in 2006 and took up the principal's job at McAuley Catholic Central School (now McAuley Catholic College), and was in that position for five years, before retiring. She was kept busy afterwards by her involvement with pastoral care with St Vincent de Paul.

"We did a lot during the bushfire summer, with the bushfire relief," she said.

"Our Canberra-Goulburn headquarters is in Canberra and we did a lot with the families in Tumbarumba, Batlow, Adelong, around Tumut."

She also played a big part in establishing Rosalie Rendu House conference centre in Tumut.

"I was Conference President for a few years," she said.

Pat is still heavily involved with the music and services at Tumut Catholic Church and was involved with Sing Australia when they were in Tumut.

"My father gave me a great love of music and that appreciation; just learning about the early composers, how forward thinking they were with the stuff they were writing for the period; I learnt so much," she said.

She loves being in Tumut, for both the natural setting and the local people.

"We grew up with red dust storms, all those hard farming settings," she said.

"This is totally different. There's so much here you can get involved in; even gathered for morning teas; there's so many people you get to be conscious of, not having much connection now. Their husband or wife might have died; they're there on their own and you can tell there's a loneliness in people, so it's good to invite anyone. I invite anyone to come along, and we set a Friday to meet."

This isn't part of any particular organisation.

"It's just a group of friends who see it as an important thing," she said.

"Generally, we set it in concrete on the first Friday of the month over at Pie in the Sky. "People can just drop in."

Family hopeful new podcast will find answers more than two decades on

Niamh Maye.

THE family and friends of Niamh Maye hope a new podcast delving into her story will lead to answers in their search for their daughter, sister, aunt and friend.

Eighteen-year-old Niamh disappeared near Jingellic on Easter Saturday, March 30, 2002. Twenty-two years on, her family remains hopeful of finding answers. In their search the family connected with the host of award-winning podcast Casefile, leading to a 12-episode in-depth series.

Researching what was intended to be a single episode, the Casefile host found so many intriguing elements, he took four years to write and create this new series. He connected with Niamh's story on a personal level too.

"I felt drawn to tell Niamh's story, mainly because I wanted to help her family find answers to the many questions they've had over the years, not only about her disappearance but also the aftermath and investigation and helping them understand the many twists and turns that took place. But I also felt drawn to Niamh, maybe because we were a similar age and had similar taste in music," the host* commented.

"Niamh was just a young person, setting out on an adventure with friends and testing the waters of life, like so many 18-year-olds do. But unlike the rest of us, she didn't make it home and I want to help her family find her."

Niamh's sister, Fionnuala Hagerty thanked the Casefile team on the family's behalf, stating, "We can't thank the Casefile team enough for the painstaking research they conducted to bring Niamh's story to life - and with such incredible care and compassion throughout. The respect they have shown in telling Niamh's story is just so appreciated.

"The ongoing pain of having a missing loved one is indescribable. The lack of answers or information, the inability to change the situation and the lack of power over or understanding of police or coronial procedures can be really traumatising over time. Casefile revealed missed opportunities at critical points, which is difficult, but overall it has helped us understand and come to terms with what occurred, and has renewed hope we may still find answers that will lead us to Niamh.

"We miss our beautiful Niamh every day and are still hopeful that we might just find the missing piece of information we need to bring her home and give her a proper resting place."

A 2012 coronial inquest found that Niamh died on or around March 30, 2002, somewhere in the vicinity of Tumut.

Despite extensive ongoing police efforts, several police-led searches and many unofficial searches conducted by her family and friends, her remains or belongings have never been found.

An intelligent and talented student, Niamh Maye had been fruit picking in Batlow during a gap year before starting university. After camping at Jingellic with other fruit pickers on Good Friday, March 29, 2002, Niamh intended to camp in Batlow on Easter Saturday before catching the Countrylink bus from Batlow to her sister's house in Sydney. Niamh never arrived. She was last seen leaving the Jingellic campground in an old black hearse driven by another fruit picker on Easter Saturday.

On what would have been Niamh's 40th birthday in June 2023, NSW Police announced a $250,000 reward for information that leads to the discovery of Niamh's remains, or for information leading to an arrest and conviction.

If you have any information you think may help, please contact Tumut Police on 6947 7199 or use the contact form on missingniamh.com.

Tumut Pub Choir returns in style

THE Tumut Pub Choir was back in full swing at The Star Hotel on Thursday night, with a whole host of new faces joining the choir for the first time.

"Half of the group were made up of regular choir goers, and the other half were all new faces and voices which was very exciting" said Emma Peacock, Tumut Pub-Choir co-founder.

The choir chose the iconic "Don't Stop Me Now" By Queen, which was lots of fun for the group of singers, which featured a range of ages.

"We are over the moon with the amount of people who turned up to our September choir, and even more so with the energy in the room when they were singing their hearts out!" said Natasha Proos, Tumut Pub Choir Co-Founder.

Emma Peacock and Laura Rampling.

"It was so nice to see some younger people in the crowd, and we always encourage families to come along and bring their kids. I think I was most impressed, being such a Queen lover myself, that the kids all knew the words!" Ms Peacock said.

The Pub Choir began in 2023 as a way to support the story, and raise a little funds, for the local chapter of Big Brothers Big Sisters, a program offering supportive adult mentors to young people experiencing disadvantage or vulnerability. Every cent of the $10 choir entry fee is donated to Big Brothers Big Sisters Tumut, helping to keep their important work alive and well in our region.

The way the choir runs is by beginning with a gentle warm up, a way to shake out some nerves and break the ice. Then the Choir leaders split the group up into the different singing sections, giving them the lyrics highlighted with their parts.

"It's a bit like group karaoke," said Emma, "you sing when your lyrics are highlighted, so the different sections come in and out, build up, break down, it sounds amazing when it all comes together, and even though some people are worried that they can't sing well, it doesn't matter, all of the voices come together and it sounds absolutely wonderful!"

Once the choir have spent some time learning the different parts of the song, they take a quick break, then they come back and belt out the song one last time from start to finish.

"I always enjoy seeing the transition from the nervous quiet voices at the beginning, to people cheering and clapping at the end! It's such a wonderful moment and just makes you feel really good!" Ms Peacock said.

The choir is a great way to be a part of the Big Brothers Big Sisters community for those who don't have the capacity to mentor, allowing people of all ages, backgrounds and abilities to come together with their community, for their community.

The Tumut Pub Choir will be back in October, continuing their lap of local Pub and Club venues.

If you'd like to stay up to date with the Tumut Pub Choir events, or Big Brothers Big Sisters Tumut, you can find them on Facebook by searching Big Brothers Big Sisters Tumut NSW.

Noah's Carpenters

"You don't look sick, Emmie," I said, as a 17-year-old rosy-cheeked girl came into my surgery.

"No, Doctor, I'm not sick, but Mother said you might help me with a donation for the Indian Vernacular Society," and she produced her collecting book. "The Society wants to teach children in India to read the Bible and I'm doing all I can to help," she answered eagerly.

"A great idea," I replied. "I suppose the children may hear of Jesus, believe in Him, and be saved, and know that they are. Well, I hope the Lord will use this effort to bless many of them. But before going further, may I ask you, Emmie, did you ever hear of Noah's carpenters?"

"No; who were they?" she replied.
"They were people who may have helped to build the ark, by which others were saved, and yet never went in themselves."

"I never thought of them before."
"Very likely. But do you think you may be like them? You come trying to help other people to be saved, and yet, so far as I have heard, you're not saved yourself. Do you think you have ever come to Jesus, and had your sins washed away? To put it plainly, are you saved?"

This query was followed by a long silence. Then with a burst of tears, she replied: "No, I know I'm not saved. I see; I've been like Noah's carpenters."

A long conversation followed. We looked at the Word of God, and she found out to her utter dismay, that all her own good deeds were but as filthy rags in the sight of God, and that she was an utterly lost soul, needing cleansing and pardon. In this awakened state, after prayer with her, she left me.

Some weeks rolled by, and I was wondering what had been going on in Emmie's soul, when she again came to see me. Her pale, anxious face betrayed that since we parted she had passed through days and nights of deep soul-anguish.
"Mother said I should come and see you again, for I'm so miserable, I don't know what to do. I'm most anxious to be saved, if I only knew how to come to Jesus; but I'm so wicked, and my heart so hard, and I feel so dead."

"You must come to Him as you are - in all your sins - for He has said, 'Him that comes to Me I will by no means cast out' (John 6:37). Just believe Him simply. Take Him at His word."

"I do believe on Him, but I don't feel any different."
"You mustn't look at your feelings; you must just hear what His word says. Jesus says in John 5:24, `Most assuredly, I say to you, He that hears My word, and believes in Him that sent Me, has everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation [judgement], but is passed from death into life.'"

I asked Emmie, "Do you believe God sent Jesus to save you, to die for you, and to wash away your sins?"

"Yes, I truly believe He did."
"Then, you have complied with the two conditions given. You have heard and believed; such a one `has everlasting life': that is a present possession. And you `shall not come into condemnation.' That provides for the future, because Jesus Himself, on the cross, bore that condemnation. Do you believe what He says?"

"Yes, of course. He cannot lie."
"Exactly! So you see, He meets the present and the future in this verse. Nor is that all. We all were 'dead in trespasses and sins' (Eph 2:1), so Jesus adds here that the one who hears and believes, 'is passed from death unto life.' Nothing could be simpler or more blessed."

"Yes, I see it now. Oh, how simple it all seems now!" And she now cried tears of joy that will flow down the cheeks of a redeemed, pardoned, blood-washed sinner, when God's grace is tasted and enjoyed. I prayed with her, and thanked God for His grace in saving her; and she left full of peace and joy in believing.

Reader, what about you? Are you a Noah's carpenter? As you value your soul, be persuaded to come to Jesus now! Then shall your future be bright and joyous, for you will be saved, sanctified, and satisfied.

Agtech and fine weather combine to make Henty a success

A FOCUS on the latest advancements in agricultural technology with a backdrop of fine weather and 55,000 visitors helped make the Henty Machinery Feld Days a success.

Held on September 17-19, the 61st annual field days featured 14km of outdoor shop fronts from more than 800 exhibitors representing 3500 companies on over 1200 sites.

HMFD chief executive officer Belinda Anderson said the exhibition space was equal to last year's record and showcased over $200 million in agricultural machinery, resulting in the nation's leading field days.

Mrs Anderson said a key drawcard this year was the Agtech Alley, a collaboration with NSW Department of Primary Industries and Regional Development and Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry under the Support Regional Trade Events Program.

Farmers and visitors from every state and territory sought out the hot ticket items of hay, silage, grain storage and livestock handling equipment.

Visitors were also treated to Furphy water cart rebarrelling demonstrations, the Questacon pop-up science circus, fly overs by a PC 21 from the RAAF Roulettes at Sale, and a reptile show while Henty designer Headlie Shipard Taylor was acknowledged by marking the centenary of the Sunshine Auto Header.

The 61st field days were officially opened by meteorologist Jane Bunn, who was also a guest speaker at the new Agtech Alley and Country Lifestyle.

HMFD chairman Nigel Scheetz was pleased with how the event unfolded after a consistent flow of exhibitor bookings leading into the field days.

He welcomed the new innovations into grain handling capacity and livestock handling equipment, along with the launch of the Agtech Alley site.

"At the end of the day it is a lot of repeat exhibitors plus new ones which is exciting," Mr Scheetz said.

A highlight this year was the coveted Henty Machine of the Year Award being presented to the Ram-to-Ewe automated catching pen entered by Flinn Design, The Rock. Highly commended was the world's widest draper platform, the Midwest Legacy, from Midwest Fabrication, Dalby, Qld.

Andrew Watt, Hutcheon and Pearce sales and marketing manager, declared 2024 as "one of the best Henty's ever", with the business unveiling a new electric ride-on mower.

"We have had a great amount of genuine interest from customers. The new John Deere S and X-Series harvesters were on display with the predictive ground speed automation and forward-facing cameras using satellite imagery from the past year to predict the crop flow into the harvester and giving an extra 20 per cent of productivity," Mr Watt said.

"That was well received, and customers are excited to see them demonstrated in the paddock."

Mr Watt said zero-turn ride on mower sales had been "through the roof" and compact tractor sales had been strong.

Jarrod Stephenson, Intersales general resource officer, said inquiries peaked on the Wednesday with a rate of genuine inquiry unseen at field days over the past few years.

Mr Stephenson said hay and silage machinery, including mower conditioners, was the hot topic along with tractors and tillage equipment.

"Some people have already made a decision to cut crops for hay based on the recent frost, and others are still hopeful if we can get some rain, things might recover," he said.

It was the first year the Case IH and New Holland dealers in Wodonga and Wagga had collaborated on the one site, with expectations exceeded.

Jimmy O'Neill, AKRON Australia DJI Agriculture general manager, said adoption of drone technology had been rapid with strong enquiry this year at Henty.

Growers and contractors were able to inspect drones with a payload of 40 litres of liquid and 70 litre of solids for baits, seed and spraying fungicide over canola.

Among the new exhibitors was Darren Monkoff, LeadnHand, with an anti-tangle device for the storage of electrical leads and ropes invented by a central Qld cattle farmer.

"We are a new invention and interest has been fantastic with strong sales for such a simple, low cost, Aussie owned and engineered, product," he said.

Jim Gall, RB Sellars chief executive officer, said Henty was important to the clothing and workwear brand, with the business notching up its best sales day ever at any field day on the opening day.

"Timing is good as we had just launched our catalogue of spring /summer product. This is our epicentre as we have stores in Albury, Orange, Wagga, and Dubbo," Mr Gall said.

"We have seen a transition to automation and a digitally led future for agriculture and our clothes are no different. We are working on innovation around breathability and fabrics to make them better to work in."

Talayah Dodds, All Things Country manager, said work boots, dress boots and jeans were popular with field days visitors.

Exhibiting for over 10 years, Damien was happy with the solid trade in local wines from repeat customers.

Hamish Dickson, Farmers to the Future program project manager, said the wide range of suppliers from across the agtech industry from soil and water monitoring to livestock handling systems drew farmers seeking labour efficiency, timely and accurate data management and staff safety at Agtech Alley.

"Agtech Alley at Henty was an opportunity to bring all those suppliers under the one roof and people able to see it in the one place," he said.

HMFD is set to host the 62nd field days on September 23-25, 2025, with planning already underway.

Heavy Merino ewes reach $135/head

Wagga Wagga sale yards 50,000 sheep, lambs

By MEAT & LIVESTOCK AUSTRALIA

LAMB numbers experienced a significant decline following last week's price correction. Quality varied across different weights and grades, especially among the older lamb classes. Buyer participation was inconsistent, with some refraining from purchases due to maintenance shutdowns at certain plants.

Last week, agents presented 16,550 new season lambs, some of which showed signs of dryness attributed to severe frosts in the regions.

Young lambs weighing between 20-24kg sold for prices ranging from $144 to $196, averaging around 790-800c/kg cwt. Those in the 24-26kg range traded between $195 and $219/head.

Heavy export young lambs faced a reduced pool of buyers, leading to a price decrease of $5/head.

The majority sold for prices between $210 and $244, averaging 803c/kg. Store lambs with weight and frame fetched between $111 and $158, while lambs intended for feeding sold for $164 to $175.

It was a very mixed offering of mutton that sold to a reduced field of processors.

Buyers were subdued at times with some processors only wanting to bid on younger sheep.

Heavy sheep sold to improved price outcomes with crossbred ewes gaining eight dollars while heavy Merino ewes improved four dollars with the bulk selling from $75 to $135/head.

Trade sheep were in reasonable numbers fetching from $50 to $74 to average 250c to 263c/kg cwt.

Cattle quality improves

By MEAT & LIVESTOCK AUSTRALIA

NUMBERS slipped only slightly as dry weather across some parts of the supply area create challenges for some vendors, with water becoming an issue.

Overall, the quality of the cattle improved with more well finished heavy steers and bullocks in the mix.

The feeder steer market sold to softer trends, though competition and demand at times was very erratic.

While prices saw an uptick in bidding toward the middle of the sale, very few steers fetched prices above 400c/kg.

There was a good number of light weight steers, heifers, in the offering with the steer portion selling to stronger price trends.

Light weight steers returning to the paddock sold from 380c to 446c/kg to average $1054 across the board.

Trade cattle suitable for domestic processors were in good numbers however buyers were unable to outbid feedlots on many occasions.

Trade steers and heifers sold within a range of 340c to 394c/kg. Feeder steers 400 to 500kg experienced a decline of nine cents, while lighter weights dipped 15c/kg.

Medium-weight feeder steers traded between 310c and 404c/kg, while lighter weights averaged 362c/kg.

Medium-weight feeder heifers gained five cents in stronger competition, fetching 310c to 364c/kg.

The export market experienced solid demand, from all export companies. Heavy steers and bullocks were in excellent condition with some off crop and showing plenty of finish.

The bulk sold from 320c to 380c/kg. The cow market showed signs of improving from the beginning of the sale with most cow buyers in the fray.

Prices for heavy cows strengthened throughout the sale, gaining 7c to average 340c/kg. Leaner cows were in high demand, and this resulted in a price jump of 18c to 20c/kg with very few cows selling below 300c/kg.

The main run of D3 cows under 530kg made from 260c to 334c/kg. Big heavy bulls sold from 275c to 320c/kg.

Cherrypickers champs of Group 9

By JOSH GIDNEY

THE Young Cherrypickers triumphed 16-12 over the Wagga Kangaroos in Sunday's Group 9 grand final at McDonalds Park in Wagga on Sunday.

For Young, Jayke Hogan, Jesse Corcoran and Jahnayah Freeman scored tries while Devon Makoare-Boyce kicked two conversions. For Kangaroos, who also lost last year's grand final, Dakota Ruta and James Smart scored tries and Charles Barton kicked a conversion and a penalty goal.

The Gundagai Tigers, who only lost one game this year, scored a dramatic 18-16 win over the Albury Thunder in the reserve grade grand final. It looked like the only team to beat the Tigers all season might do it again, bringing an otherwise brilliant season to a shattering conclusion. However, centre Toby Dasey scored his second try in the dying minutes to give the minor premiers the premiership they had well earned.

The Temora Dragons edged out Wagga Brothers 12-8 in the League Tag, scoring three tries to one.

However, the younger teams ensured that the host city fans had plenty to cheer about.

Kangaroos beat Brothers 10-6 in the under 18s, each team scoring one try, and Kangaroos under 16 side scored the biggest grand final win, 38-4 over the South City Bulls.

Franklin girls frankly brilliant

By JOSH GIDNEY

FRANKLIN Public School's girls basketball team are Riverina champions after turning in a brilliant performance to win the Riverina Knockout Final at Tumut Basketball Stadium on Friday.

They will now play in the State Championships in Penrith in October.

"Credit to Parkview; they stuck it to us right from the get-go, and never let go; that's always been the case with them."

The two sides met in 2022, 2023 and now again.

"It's always been a contest played in the right spirit," Mastellotto said.

Mastelotto said he was always more concerned about how the girls are playing on the court rather than the score.

The Franklin Public cheer squad were very vocal in their support of the girls on Friday afternoon, creating a terrific atmosphere.

The campaign started with a 23-22 win over Tumut Public School, which was decided by a McKenna Blewitt free throw and was the closest game Franklin has had.

They then beat Temora Public 43-7, South Wagga Public 49-8 and Kooringal Public 45-17 to qualify for this.

"A lot of these girls have been part of the local competition in town and they've been quite fortunate to have access to really good coaches," Mastellotto said.

"My biggest challenge is that I've already got talented basketballers, so how do I get them to play as a team. I don't pretend to be a basketball coach but I've played enough sport t know the common things that pop up in all games, so my job is to get the girls gelling as a team."

The game was played at a frantic pace and with tremendous sportsmanship, something greatly valued by the coach, manager, school and team.

"To play sport is a right for everyone; representing the school is a privilege," Mastellotto said.

"I would like to thank the parents and supporters who have driven around the Riverina for the girls to get to games."

The Franklin team will now play Wyalong Public at the State Championships in Penrith on October 25.
